Sheltowee Trace Adventure Resort and Cumberland Falls

Home of the Moonbow

Cumberland Falls

is a 65 foot tall waterfall located in the foothills of the Appalachian mountains. The centerpiece of Cumberland Falls State Resort Park, Cumberland Falls stretches 125 feet across before tumbling down a boulder strewn gorge on its way to Lake Cumberland. Hiking and horseback riding are also available at the state park.

Sheltowee Trace Adventure Resort

is located 5 miles east of Cumberland Falls State Resort Park. We provide lodging and adventure trips in the Cumberland Falls area as well as in the Big South Fork National River and Recreation area and the Daniel Boone National Forest. Our Adventure Resort makes a great base-camp to explore the area. Cabins, covered wagons, RV and tent camping are all available at the resort. Spend your days whitewater rafting, canoeing, kayaking, zip lining, riverboat cruising, waterfall or arch hunting. Unwind in the evenings around a campfire, and relax with family and friends.

What is a Moonbow?

This rare and magical sight is a lunar rainbow, formed by the light of the full moon. On clear moon-filled nights, a ray of light can be seen stretching out from the base of Cumberland Falls arcing downstream through the mist. Cumberland Falls is one of only two places in the world where one can regularly see a moonbow.

Big South Fork National River and Recreation Area

The Big South National River and Recreation Area (BSFNRA) spans 125,000 acres on the border between Kentucky and Tennessee and protects the free-flowing Big South Fork of the Cumberland and its tributaries.

Approximately 76 miles long, the river helps drain the Cumberland Plateau, running south to north (from TN into KY). The Class III/IV Upper section (Burnt Mill or Pine Creek down to Leatherwood Ford) in TN is wonderful for spring whitewater rafting. The middle section (Leatherwood Ford or Station Camp to Blue Heron) is for more experienced canoers or kayakers looking for multi-day adventures, while the lower section in KY is excellent for single or multi-day casual paddlers. No matter which section you paddle, the scenic gorges and high bluff lines make for a wonderful trip.

Blue Heron (aka Mine 18), on the banks of the Big South Fork river, was an isolated mining town, abandoned in 1962. In the 1980's the NPS built a road into the old mining town, interviewed former residents and built 'ghost' structures. Today's visitors can take a self-guided audio tour as they explore these structures, the old coal tippie and the RR depot. Located nearby, Barthell was the 1st coal mining camp in the area. Privately owned, it has been restored and offers guided tours and lodging.

The Big South Fork Scenic Railway rides the old RR tracks, passing through open vistas, roaring rivers, and the history and charm of Appalachian coal country as it winds its way down to Barthell and Blue Heron mining camps. Our duckie (p. 9) and tubing (P. 11) trips both meet in Blue Heron area.

In addition to the river from which it takes its name, the BSFNRA is a hiker's paradise. Home to gorgeous arches and waterfalls, it includes the highest waterfall in KY - Yahoo Falls.

Horsepack outfitters provide customized horseback rides and pack trips on the 212 miles of horse trail, mostly in the TN section of the park. Stabling facilities and equestrian campgrounds are located within the park as well.

Charit Creek Lodge is a rustic backcountry lodge located in the heart of the BSFNRA. It is accessible only by hiking, biking or horseback.

Rockclimbing and mountain biking are also popular in the park.
